THUNDERSTORMS
ARE VERY DANGEROUS!!

It is the time of year where thunderstorm watches and warnings are a very common occurrence (especially in the evenings). Although it is normal to want to finish your hole or your round, one should use some perspective when rolling the dice against Mother Nature. The importance of a golf shot does not loom too heavily in the grand scheme of things.

Below is an actual picture of the remains of some golf equipment after a lightning strike. The golfer was out on the course with his buddies for a regular weekly tee time. The forecast was clear and did not even predict any storms for the day. When the group was in the middle of their back nine, it began to rain. Because there was some lightning in the distance, they decided to head in. As it began to rain even harder, the group found a tree and took shelter from the weather. When the rain let up, three of the group headed for the clubhouse. The fourth decided he wanted to finish his round and was going to wait out the storm under a 50 ft. pine tree with a 10 ft. canopy. He paid the ultimate penalty.

MORAL: Do not underestimate the awesome capabilities of Mother Nature!!

Above is a picture of the remains of a golf bag, clubs, and a push cart that were struck by lightning in Wisconsin in late June, 2009.
